

Qais Qandil

Qais Qandil is a multi-talented individual with roles as both a Producer and Actor. He served as a Producer for the films "The Misfits" (an Action/Thriller), "Warhunt" (a Horror/War film), "The Good Neighbor" (Thriller) and "Vision Central" (a Comedy/Drama).

Under the banner of his production company, THE FILM MAKERS, Qandil is gearing up for the release of "Vision Central" in 2024. Notably, he shattered expectations by partially filming "Vision Central" in the United Arab Emirates (UAE) as well as "The Misfits" that was 90% shoot in UAE.

He holds the distinction of being the first Hollywood Arabic producer to bridge the gap between Arabic-Muslim and American cultures onscreen, combining elements of action and romance and culture. Based in the United Arab Emirates and the broader Middle East, Qandil has introduced well-known Hollywood features and talent to the region.

His understanding of the local requirements and access to picturesque locations has added significant value to various film projects.

Qandil's ambitious slate includes numerous upcoming projects, A fully packaged horror called "Dar is Where Home is" and Romance comedy "Once upon time in Dearborn" and a lead producer role in the comedy film "Yes, My Name Is Malik," featuring a substantial production budget of $17 million, currently in final financing stage, This project is just one among several currently in development by his production company.
