I'm Florence Amara Akuma, a passionate emerging British-Nigerian filmmaker, writer, and director with a deep love for storytelling and visual experimentation. I'm currently a second-year film student at SAE University in Dubai, where I continue to shape my creative voice through hands-on projects. Some of the projects I've worked on (but not all) include The Pizza Man (a comedy short), Environmental Feelings and Dr. Chijoke Peter Ndeche (both documentaries), and Shadows of Desire, a psychological horror thriller inspired by German Expressionism. Influenced by filmmakers like Tim Burton, I'm driven to create bold, emotionally impactful stories with a strong visual style, and I'm always looking to collaborate with others who share that passion.

Willing to relocate: Anywhere
